Walkaround

What is it?

Walkaround is a signature Homecoming tradition at OSU. Each year fraternities, sororities and residence halls spend months creating massive house decorations made from tiny pieces of tissue paper, also known as pomp.

On Friday night before the football game, crowds gather in Stillwater to stroll past the colorful displays and celebrate America's Greatest Homecoming.

What is Pomping?

Pomping is OSU's tradition of weaving wadded tissue paper through a chicken wire frame to create large-scale, intricate house decorations and parade floats.

Students use pencils to place the pomps into the wire, following a designed grid to produce stunning, detailed displays for Walkaround.
